

Pollinator Song

When I'm in the garden there is so much I can see,
And things to smell, and touch, and feel,
and WAIT! Here comes a bee!
Sipping on some nectar from the flowers, what a treat,
And as they land there, pollen sticks upon their fuzzy feet!

CHORUS

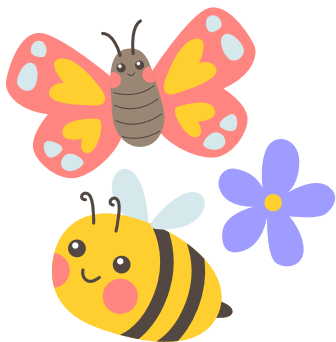

Buzz and flutter, flap and fly,
Pollinators in the sky!
Thanks to them our flowers grow—
Let's give a cheer now, go go go!

Now I see a quick, quick flutter of a butterfly,
Spreading pollen all around us as it dances by.
Lovely colors on its wings, they give a gentle touch,
Landing here and landing there helps flowers very much!

CHORUS

When you're in the garden next, there's opportunity
To understand what pollinators give to you and me.
You can do your very best to help them every day,
Plant some flowers, give them space to pollinate away!

CHORUS

Sing Along with Us!
